Look Who's Standing Up for Kids

These Colorado leaders know that each year 11,000 Colorado children are victims of abuse and neglect. They also know that these young victims have a powerful ally in their CASA -- short for court appointed special advocate. These special men and women from the community volunteer their time to stand up for child victims of abuse and neglect to help ensure that the children's voice is heard. With a CASA volunteer at the children's side, the system is much better able to help them find safe, permanent, and nurturing home. If you care about kids, you can help make a difference in the life of a child by becoming a CASA volunteer. Call the CASA program nearest you today to find out how you can make a difference in a child's life.
